ADDRESS OF HON. N. W. FINLEY.

To the Democracy of Texas: FELLOW DEMOCRATS-In the exercise of the duties imposed upon me as chairman of the Democracy of the state, and with a high sense of its responsibilities I have, with a steady and impartial hand, endeavored to point out the path of regular organized party action leading to full expression of Democratic sentiment and the preservation of the integrity and strength of our party organization. I should not address you again on the subject, knowing full well that my words of counsel are yet fresh in your memories, were I not moved by what seems to me a deliberate effort at suppression of Democratic sentiment or disruption of Democratic organization. I cannot reconcile the utterances daily appearing in the newpapers from open letter writers and stump speakers, with a sincerity of purpose to promote practical, honest methods of gathering and enforcing the opinion and will of the Democratic masses. Under the cry of danger, self-constituted leaders have rushed to the front, and instead of trying to secure harmony of action and preservation of organization, have advised revolt, and have laid plans for bolts, contests and disruption. Who are these who deny any authority in, and impugn the motives of the chairman, while assuming so much for themselves? Do they stand upon any lofty eminence of impartiality, and though patriotism alone sound the alarm bell to arouse a sleeping Democracy?

Let their several positions in this campaign and their intemperate utterances of personal, partisan passion answer. The damage is said to exist in my statement as to qualifications and methods which should obtain, in admission to Democratic primaries; is there anything new and dangerous in my official suggestions to the Democracy? Hear them, as in substance uniformly given; 1. The party has announced no fixed well and O'Loughlin, who have rule of testing qualifications for admission in primaries, but trusts to the loyalty and discretion of Its members in local organizations in such matters.

2. A man should reside in the locality where the primary is held, possess the general qualifications of a voter, and be a Democrat, who is permitted to participate in Democratic primaries.

3. An open announcement of adhercompanied by an obligation to support its organized action, is ordinarily sufficlent evidence of good faith, to be a passport into Democratic primaries. 4. Should there exist in any particular locality serious apprehension of an element previously unfriendly, in bad faith seeking admission into our primaries; the local organization should provide an ef-

ing careful to close our doors against no cratic voter who honestly and in good faith seeks admission No, fellow Democrats, the advisory directions I have given you breath a spirit of harmony and integrity of Democracy and practical honest politics; and the alarm is a false one, owing its origin to the foreshadowing of Demofeetual method to exclude all such, be-by exasperated partisans for purposes other than the triumph of the will of the Democratic masses. If I were to heed the sickly, hypocritical warnings and entreaties of these self-appointed guardians of the Democracy of Texas, I would then have ample authority in their opinion to direct in matters of organized action, and I would then be led to bar the doors of our party against the great body of laboring Democrats of this state. l am already asked by an affectionate open correspondent to denounce as the enemies of Democracy the two agricuitural papers of the state, for the reason that they are advising those of their readers who have heretofore departed from the Democratic fold to return and share in the privileges and blessings of Democracy; wall erected around those who can furnish a perfect pedigree of past loyalty, and depend upon the fruit of their for increase. I have no such fears from the farming, laboring element, as would for one moment induce me to seriously consider such radical action: I have an abiding faith in the Democracy of the body of the agricultural voters of Texas, and I feel assured that they will exercise the privilege of local self government in party affairs, with as much safety to purity of Democracy as any other element in the state.

I would be as ready to condemn any secret political organization or combination of laboring men as being antagonistic to Democracy, and with as ready a hand lock the door of our party organization against them, as any living man; no man who owes fealty to another political organization should have any voice in Democratic councils, and if there be any such antagonistic organizations in particular localities seeking admission into Democratic primaries, solemn duty rests upon the Democracy of such places to keep out the wolf in sheep's clothing and preserve the purity of Democratic expression.

In conclusion I beg to sound the note of warning against the deliberately laid schemes for bolts, and contests, and admonish that open, fair, clean, honest methods obtain in your organized actions. Respectfully.

Chairman state Democratic executive committee.

Owing to previous engagements none of the other speakers who were invited could attend. Mr. Brown delivered a fine lecture in the morning on Masonry, which was highly appreciated by the audience, and in the evening he was requested to address them on the all absorbing topic of the governor. He showed very plainly why he was in favor of Hogg and the commission. His speech was enthusiastically received, and one could easily see from that vast audience that Jim Hogg and the commission were almost their unanimous choice. Mr. Brown is well known here, and was cordially and hospitably treated.

A NEGRO FIEND.

Special to the Gazette.

HUNTSVILLE, TEX., June 25 .- A Mr. Stovall, from near Bryan, accompanied by three other men armed with guns. came into town last night hunting for a negro fiend who had outraged his (Stovall's) daughter and was supposed to have come in this direction. Stovall's account it appears that he and his wife had gone to a prayer meeting, leaving his two girls, aged about eighteen and twenty years respectively, and three little boys at the house. A negro who called himself John Brown had been prowling around the neighborhood for several days, and about 10 o'clock that night (Monday) the girls saw him coming toward the house. and thinking him a suspicious character barred the door. The negro, however, demanded admittance, and being refused broke down the door with an iron wedge. He then caught the oldest girl, who was very delicate, and when she resisted him struck her down with the piece of iron, beat her over the head with his fist, choked her and accomplished his diabolical purpose. The other girls and little boys ran over to a neighbor's house which was some distance off, and gave the alarm. A crowd of men immediately rushed over there, but the negro had iumped on a horse and fled the country. Only five minutes after he had gone, Stovall and wife arrived on the scene, coming from church, and he immediately organized a crowd and took after the fiend. From what the negro had told some one the day before, they thought he was coming over in this direction, having a mother here. Not finding any trace of him, they again set out in a different direction. The negro is of a light ginger-cake color, twentyone or twenty-two years of age, fully six fest in height, and weighs about 160; wears a No. 11 shoe, and had on a white straw hat; thin beard on each jaw, light mustache; had a bay horse, which he stole at another place, with a star in forehead and left fore-foot white, new
